It's Your Library

If you are a lover of Carmel, you will welcome the opportunity to improve your library. The addition to the building is needed because:

1. The library has had no increase in space since it was built 20 years ago.
2. The population of Carmel has more than doubled in that time, and many living outside the city limits use the library by paying a fee.
3. Volumes in the library now number about 33,000.
4. Card holders number about 4,000.
5. Annual circulation exceeds 80,000.
6. New stacks, needed for the growing book collection, are now encroaching on the reading room.
7. Shelves are crowded to the point of rendering operation very difficult and inefficient.
8. The new plans call for an increase of space of about 80 per cent, extending the entire building back to the Sixth street line.
9. The bond issue of $35,000, along with a building fund of $5,000 now on hand, will also cover new heating and lighting for the entire library.
10. The plan is to pay off the bonds over a period of 12 years.
11. This will cost the tax payers about three cents a year on each $100 of assessed value.
12. For property with an assessed value of $4,000, or an actual value of about $12,000, the cost will be about $1.20 a year, or a dime a month.

BE SURE TO VOTE AT SUNSET SCHOOL FRIDAY, MAY 20 from your

Board of Trustees,
Harrison Memorial Library.

The Pine Cone joins the Board of Trustees of the library in urging you to vote for the bond issue.

Work And Sweat, Know Your Facts, And Work And Sweat To Be A Writer; Being Tal Josselyn Helps, Too

BY MARY CALUORI

"A writer has to take it like the prize fighter takes it. He goes down, he gets up, rubs the resin off his pants and says: 'You never touched me!'"

Close to town, in his comfortable haven within its sylvan setting, writer Talbert Josselyn covered the scope of his activities from their Massachusetts beginnings to the present day, impressing this reporter

Gallery Announces One-Man Shows Opening Monday

An interesting group of shows is planned for the Carmel Art Gallery beginning May 16, according to an announcement made this week by Mrs. Nellie Montague, curator.

Portraits, landscapes and still lifes by Leslie Emery will be shown in part of the main gallery, and in another section of the same gallery there will be a showing of water colors by Roland Pickwick, Jr.

One half of the main room will be devoted to a general exhibition of works by local artists, and beginning on May 23 there will be with his balanced humor and grave insight. He is a pleasant man to talk with and to listen to. His words are colorful and concise, picture words, dimensional words. You know already that he is an action story writer, but if you had not known, you would guess at once, for his lines fall out fully composed; you move along with him. In the historic vicinity of Brookfield, Massachusetts, the Josselyns trace their forebears from early Puritan days. In 1882 they came west to San Diego to join the much travelled worldlings already colonized there. "Tal" was himself by that time a much travelled youngster, for his father often took him on his journeys, by train or by camp cart, and they knew the States well. He speaks of coming up from Los Angeles by camp wagon

Trucks Assist In Cleanup

Carmel city trucks will begin early next week to pick up trash in front of residences, it was announced yesterday by Mayor Fred Godwin and Commissioner of Streets Gene Ricketts.

The cleanup campaign actually began on May 10; but authorization for the city trucks to carry away the trash had to await Mayor Godwin's return.

Residents who wish to have trash picked up are urged NOT to phone the street department or the city clerk's office. They are asked to place the trash in front of their homes, piled neatly, and the trucks will eventually get around to collect it. No garbage, of course, will be picked up by the trucks.

Also as a part of the cleanup campaign, Fire Marshal Robert Leidig announced this week that he, with his assistant, Dave Machado, will inspect the business district for possible fire hazards. In any cases found of debris accumulating that might possibly be hazardous, merchants will be warned.

City Clerk Peter Mawdsley reported that he had received many calls from residents who had already placed trash out for the trucks. They are advised to leave it there and it will be called for. The project has the approval of city council members, and they urge the townspeople to cooperate in this worthwhile project to the fullest extent.

Carmel Favorites In Play Opening At Golden Bough Monday

The brilliant Siegfried Geyer comedy of Viennese life, By Candlelight, translated and adapted by Edward Kuster, will open at Golden Bough Playhouse this Monday May 16. The cast, all well known to Peninsula playgoers, includes the following: Lloyd Weer, Lee Crowe, Ruth Warshawsky, Frederick Stevens, Virginia von Urban, Willard Branson, Gabrielle Kuster and Edward Kuster (directing).

The P. G. Wodehouse adaptation, which transformed the play into farce-comedy, ran for a long time in New York and London, with Gertrude Lawrence and Leslie Howard starring. The present translation restores the high comedy flavor of the Continental original, and when performed under Mr. Kuster's direction in San Francisco and Fresno some years ago the light and charming play received high praise.

By Candlelight was played in Carmel's beautiful original Theatre of the Golden Bough for a single day, matinee and evening, and was enthusiastically received. Two days later, May 19, 1935, the theatre was destroyed by fire, and further performances were rendered impossible. Of the original cast, Lloyd Weer and Mr. and Mrs. Kuster are again in their former roles.

Essentially the play is an ingen-

Carmel Builds A Library

BY CAROL CARD
PART II

Carmel owes its present public library to the generosity of Mrs. Ella Reid Harrison, a widow whose husband, Judge Ralph Chandler Harrison, had been for twelve years a Justice in the State Supreme Court. She was a frequent visitor to Carmel, where she gained a wide circle of friends, and in 1919 she established a permanent home here. She was a patron of the arts and a woman of wide culture.

Judge and Mrs. Harrison together had built up a fine private library of over 2000 volumes, some of them rare and valuable, on a wide range of subjects, particularly religious, philosophy, biography, history, literature, and art. She had built up a fine group of art books, and her Browning collection was famous. In 1918, after the death of Judge Harrison, she began formulating plans to present the community of Carmel-by-the-Sea with a library, which was to be a memorial to her husband.

Mrs. Harrison expected, of course, to see her proposed library and the already well-established Carmel Free Library consolidate into one institution. In September, 1918, she purchased two lots at Ocean and Lincoln street adjacent to the Carmel Free Library, and laid her plans before its trustees. She proposed to give not only the lots and a new building to the City of Carmel, but her fine collection of books, as well. And the institution should be called "The Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library." The Carmel Free Library had outgrown its old quarters and was then trying to raise funds to enlarge the building. Mrs. Harrison's proposal was favorably received, and only the World War, which was still raging, delayed actual construction of the new building.

But Mrs. Harrison's hopes were not to be realized in her lifetime. Before construction could be undertaken, a serious disagreement between herself and the library trustees made further cooperation impossible for the time being. Then, early in the morning of Oct.

12, 1922, fire broke out in the kitchen of Mrs. Harrison's house and destroyed the structure. Mrs. Harrison's body was found in the smouldering ruins, and it was assumed at first that she had been burned to death. The horrified community was united—for once—in mourning, and turned out en masse for the impressively beautiful funeral service held in the late afternoon of October 17, at the Forest Theatre. A few days later, her friends were somewhat comforted by the news that a thorough investigation of all evidence indicated that she had almost certainly died of a heart attack during the night, before the fire started.

In the summer of 1923, when the terms of Mrs. Harrison's will were made public, it was learned that she had made full provision for the establishment of the Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library. The Pine Cone, August 4, 1923, carried the news that 3½ lots at the corner of Ocean and Lincoln, and $20,000 in bonds had been left for the purpose, and also books and furniture, then in storage in a San Francisco warehouse. A large box, marked "Library" had also been found, containing "a number of articles, which may be described as examples of the art of various countries, and also a number of etchings and other prints." Mrs. Harrison had also drawn up plans for the building, but these evidently were lost in the fire. She had often discussed her ideas with friends, however, so it was known that she intended to have the ex-

Flower Show To Be Period Piece With Musical Background

The old fashioned, provincial theme of the Carmel Woman's Club annual Flower Show this Saturday and Sunday will be carried out completely, from the authentic costumes of the pretty young hostesses to a wonderful antique clothes rack, donated by Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bell, which will make the backdrop in the entrance way.

Music will be continuous during the show. The Cypress Singers, under R. E. Manhire, will be there on Saturday and Sunday from 3 to 4 p. m. Mrs. A. B. Secombe's harp will add a melodic background Saturday between 4:30 and 5:30 p. m. and between 8 and 9 in the evening. On Sunday she will play in the afternoon between 4 and 5. When the musicians are not busy, recorded music will be played, since Joseph Gledhill has donated a machine, loud speaker and records. Even old-fashioned transportation, the Blue Skies Surrey, will be waiting at the door both afternoons.

An interesting addition to the entries this year will be the permanent floral still lifes, Oakland and Pasadena show winners, of Bob Mills and Bob Robinson.

Miss Flora Hartwell is handling arrangements for the sale of cut flowers grown by members and would appreciate a call from anyone outside the membership who may wish to donate flowers.

In charge of the sale of plants, which are grown by members for this purpose, will be Mrs. L. C. Miller, who also would appreciate donations from any well-wisher.

A complete luncheon including homemade delicacies will be served in the tea room on Saturday from 11:30 a. m. to 9 p. m., and on Sunday from 11:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Students Present Play Tonight For Pool Benefit

Carmel Lions and high school students will team up tonight to present an evening of plays at Sunset School auditorium, and tickets will be available before the doors open at 8 p. m.

It's another benefit affair to raise money for the new swimming pool center now nearing completion at the high school, and promises to provide plenty of entertainment. In addition to the one-act plays, the high school orchestra—30 members strong—will perform under direction of John Farr.

Featured on the program is a Chinese play, The Dragon, presented in the traditional manner so rarely seen in this country. The other short plays are a comedy by Chekhov, The Boor, and a more serious one-act drama, The Miracle at Blaise.

A monodrama, with Didi Douglas playing the single role, will depict the amazing life of a Movie Mother. Mrs. Mariquita Brey of the school's dramatics department is directing all plays, while Leonard R. Carey of the Carmel Lions Club is handling advance arrangements.

Proceeds from the evening's entertainment will go into the fund created to pay for the $7,500 radiant heating installation at the swimming pools, which will open next month.

Meanwhile, Jack Miller of the Lions announced this week the club will stage a gala party a week from tonight, May 20, at Mission Ranch.

This benefit event will include dancing, an orchestra, refreshments and games, with the public invited to attend in western costumes and the theme of the evening stressing the hillbilly idea. The affair will commence at 8:30 p. m.

CARMEL ATHLETES COMPETE AT NCS TRACK MEET TOMORROW

Early Saturday morning, six Carmel High School trackmen will journey to Berkeley to compete in the North Coast Section meet at the University of California oval. Led by Dick Gargiulo, CCAL sprint king, the Padres expect to pick up points in the sprints, the 880, relay, high jump, and pole vault. Dick Weer stands a fine chance to place in the half-mile and will help out on the relay team. Legare McNeill and Jack Belangee will do hitches in the relay, while Birney Adams and Keith McKenzie will carry the Padre colors in the pole vault and high jump. Off comparative times, Gargiulo ranks right up with the best of the Northern California preps in the sprints and could surprise the favorites. Winners in the NCS meet qualify to compete at the State Meet in Los Angeles.

NEW INTER-CITY SOFTBALL LEAGUE ORGANIZED

With eight of the best softball teams in the Bay Area signed up for play, a brand new inter-city softball league was organized at Castroville last Saturday night. Two teams from Watsonville, three from Salinas, one from Castroville, and two from Carmel will make up the eight-team loop. George Mosolf, Carmel Recreation Director, was elected president of the league, and Harry Dffenbaugh, Wilder & Jones, was saddled with the secretary duty. The Carmel and Castroville fields will be used for most of the games, with an occasional tussle taking place at Watsonville. This new loop will assure Carmel softball fans of a continuous lineup of outstanding softball games and will provide an opportunity for some of outstanding softball games and will provide an opportunity for some fine inter-community athletic relationships.

Another meeting of league directors will be held tomorrow night at Castroville when a final schedule will be drawn and league rules formulated.

ABALONE LEAGUE STILL TIED UP

	Won	Lost
Knight's Pilots	3	2
Giles' Shamrocks	3	2
Nicholson's Giants	2	3
Balazs' Tigers	2	3

In one of the tightest Abalone League races of all time, the Pilots and Shamrocks came through with smashing performances last Sunday to whip the Tigers and Giants and assume a deadlock for the top Abalone spot. Knight's Pilots carried too much power for the effete Tigers and notched a 15-6 verdict. Jack Giles personally took care of the Giants and pitched sparkling ball to cop a hurling duel from Jay Huffman. The father and son team of the Roloff family made gallant efforts to pull the Giants to the fore, but even their brace of home runs couldn't deny the sterling pitching of Manager Giles.

Next Sunday the Pilots and Shamrocks meet for the blue chips, while the Tigers and Giants battle for third place.

PADRES BOW TO KING CITY; TIE WITH GILROY

Carmel High School's baseball team dropped a 12-8 slugging match to the King City Mustangs last Friday afternoon and played the fine Gilroy team to a 2-2 deadlock on Monday. The Padres were off winging in the King City fracas, accumulating eight runs in the first three innings, but blew the game in the fifth heat when King City hit around for 9 markers. Henry Overin pitched good enough to win, but sloppy support in the tight spots nullified his pitching.

In the Gilroy game, Carmel looked at the fastest pitching seen around here all season. The Gilroy lad struck out the first seven Padre hitters and had good game control until the last inning, when Carmel notched two runs and sent the game into extra innings. Due to an injury sustained by the Gilroy catcher, the game was called during the bottom half of the eighth inning and goes into the books as a 2-2 tie. The Gilroy catcher was hit in the neck by a fast pitch and was taken to the hospital in Carmel's new Red Cross ambulance. Carmel and Gilroy meet again on May 26th at Gilroy.

Realtors Endorse Library Bonds

Attorney Gordon Campbell's views in support of the library bond issue were enthusiastically endorsed by the Carmel Board of Realtors at the monthly luncheon meeting Monday at Hotel La Ribera.

Guest speakers were J. A. Grimley and Z. H. Klawans of the local housing expediter's office, who gave a short resume of the new version of the rent control law.

Also on the agenda was the election of a new board of directors to assist president Ernest Morehouse. Chosen were Le Mon Realty, Leslie Realty, Enos Fouratt, Kenneth Wood, Corum Jackson and Gladys Johnston.

Carmel Builds A Library

terior resemble the old Custom House at Monterey, but without the balconies. The interior arrangement was to include a main reading room, a reference room, and a separate reading room for children. Management and maintenance was to be entrusted to a board of library trustees, who were to have a reasonably permanent tenure of office. As a result of her difficulties with the trustees of the Carmel Free Library, Mrs. Harrison "especially and emphatically insisted that . . . she did not want . . . (the Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library) to form a part of any combination or consolidation with any other library."

The new library would be built at once! But why not put the structure on city-owned Block 69 (now Devendorf Plaza) and sell Mrs. Harrison's gift lots to raise more money for the establishment? Was this legal? After some deliberation, attorneys came up with the conclusion that it would be legal. Meanwhile, at the request of certain friends and heirs of Mrs. Harrison, a well-known local sculptor drew up plans and specifications for the new library building in accordance with what were believed to be Mrs. Harrison's wishes. Immediately a faction of the citizenry began circulating a petition begging the City Trustees to appoint a certain prominent local architect to draw up the plans. This man, they claimed, was Mrs. Harrison's choice. On December 15, 1923, the Pine Cone announced that the City Trustees were about to take steps to call for bids on construction of the building planned by the sculptor. The opposing faction jammed the Board room on the night of December 19, waving fists and petitions, as we can well imagine. The Trustees squirmed out from under for the time being by claiming that they had no say in the matter; that the selection of an architect was the prerogative of a board of library trustees, but as yet there was no such body. And so the matter was left to simmer. According to an item in "News Notes of California Libraries," however, the plans and specifications prepared by the sculptor were accepted by the City Trustees in May, 1924.

By 1924, a full-blown battle was raging over the proposed location and the style of building, not to mention the problem of cooperation or non-cooperation with the Carmel Free Library, and the question of where and how to obtain a fund for maintenance of the Harrison Memorial Library, since the bequest had not provided for maintenance. Sic transit another year.

May, 1925, found the City Trustees again determined to take definite action on the building of the library, but this time the problem was still further complicated by the fact that they were now seeking ways and means of building a city hall, and fire house, as well as a library. A committee of five citizens was appointed to study the matter. They came forward with the bright suggestion that library, city hall, and fire house, should all be built on the 3½ lots which Mrs. Harrison had willed for the library "NO!!!" roared the executors of the Harrison estate. Again the entire matter was "put over for further consideration."

In May, 1926, the Trustees—bloody but unbowed—gritted their teeth once again and announced that the library building was to be planned and rushed to completion. It would be located on the lots left for the purpose by Mrs. Harrison (and without the inclusion of city hall, fire house). A maintenance fund could be provided by taxation. Tentative plans and sketches were to be submitted to the library sub-committee before July 6. Six sets of plans were then submitted by local architects and builders, but since none of them contained all the essential features of a library building, all were rejected. In September, 1926, the library sub-committee consulted Bernard Maybeck, noted Bay region architect, and he, with advice from librarians in several cities, developed plans for the Harrison Memorial Library building. These were approved by the Trustees in December, and bids were called for. In May, 1927, when bids were opened, M. J. Murphy was declared the winner.

War was immediately declared. There was, in Carmel, a lady—who shall be nameless—and she had been actively interested in library plans from the beginning. She was one of Mrs. Harrison's intimate friends, and it was she, acting in conjunction with one of the heirs of the Harrison estate, who had arranged to have the sculptor draw up the first plans for the building. These plans had not even been considered by the library sub-committee in 1926, and the lady was thoroughly peeved. (But after all, those first plans provided space for only 6000 books!) She now took a still more active interest in library affairs, and in May, 1927, she brought an injunction suit against the City Council to halt construction of the Maybeck building, on the grounds that its plans and specifications were in violation of the terms of the will, in that they did not call for fire-proof construction and were not Spanish in style. The City Council fought the case before Judge Fred Treat in Salinas, claiming that there was nothing in the will which specified a fire-proof building of Spanish architecture—anyway, the architecture was Spanish, so there, too! Mrs. Harrison's bequest was not sufficient to cover the cost of a fire-proof structure.

The trial was a morass of legal complications and technical snarls, but Judge Treat listened to enough of the evidence to convince him that the City Council was in the right, whereupon he denied the injunction and tossed the case out.

And did that end the matter? No, the lady appealed the case! Construction had begun in mid-July, however, almost the instant that Judge Treat uttered the verdict, and Murphy was making full-steam ahead. Commented The Pine Cone wryly, on September 16, 1927, " . . . the building is being lathed and plastered, and will very likely be completed before the higher court has opportunity to study the merits of the case."

It was in June, about the time the suit was brought against the Council, that Carmel had its first hint that there was anything of value in the crate containing the etchings, prints, and other art work. The City Council received a message from the attorney for the plaintiff asking that "certain priceless things be taken from the warehouse with its precarious security, and be placed in a safe deposit vault." The etchings and prints, it seemed, were supposed to be originals by such masters as Rembrandt, Durer, Schongauer, and others. If so, the value might be as low as $20,000 or as high as $100,000, depending on the state of the prints. Fresh quarrels now broke out regarding the contents of the "Mystery Box," "Library Treasure Chest," (or, to harrassed city officials, "Pandora's Box.") Were the prints valuable originals or worthless modern reproductions? If originals, what should be done with them?—Should they be sold to get money for books? The terms of the will settled this question. The library had to keep them; furthermore, they must be framed and hung on the walls for decoration. The box was opened finally in April, 1928. When experts appraised the prints, it was found that the City had a treasure indeed in its possession. The collection included original engravings and etchings by Martin Schongauer, Albrecht Durer, Rembrandt Van Rijn, Sir Francis Seymour Haden, Adrian Von Ostade, and C. Meryon; one of the Rembrandts was a rare, priceless print of the first state.

In due time the building was completed. On the afternoon of April 2, 1928, the Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library was opened to public use. Not until January 11, 1929 did the injunction case come up for hearing before the State Supreme Court. To make a perfect story, that august tribunal should have reversed Judge Treat's decision. But the ghost of Judge Harrison must have been presiding at the bench that day, for the State Supreme Court affirmed the decision of the lower court; and we shall never know what would have happened if Carmel had been informed that the library building, in use now for almost a year, was illegal.

Of its history since that time, there is little to tell, except that the builders fondly supposed the structure would be adequate for the needs of the community for at least twenty-five years—but by 1938, just ten years after its opening, the building was inadequate and overcrowded. An addition was planned, and in September, 1938, a bond issue of $3,000, to help pay for its cost, was passed by a good majority. This bond issue, unfortunately, was contingent upon a cash grant from the Public Works Administration. The grant was first allowed, but the W.P.A. went out of business before it could be used. Today the overcrowding is still worse, for the book collection has grown by an average of 1000 books a year for most of the library's twenty-one years.

Work And Sweat, Know Your Facts— Tal Josselyn

to Santa Cruz in two weeks travel time.

There were some years at Stanford, and then he says he was "shaken out by the earthquake and fire." Then he entered the University of California, where he studied agriculture; but even then he had the writing bug and was willing to enter the gruelling cycle of trial and error through which the writer must go before he's tempered and knowing. In Salt River Valley, near Phoenix, he began seriously to write. It was a rich agricultural region, the richest in the world he calls it. It was so hot that the paper would curl around his pencil—145 in the sun, 118 in the shade. He reminisces on the struggle of those days. "I'm a Yankee," he says, with an appealing little wag of the head, "The Yankees are The Capables. As old Calvin Luther used to say (he was a Yankee who lived here, gone now): 'Dam that old Yankee conscience; it makes you DO things.' Apparently so. Mr. Josselyn has most certainly done things.

When the Military turned him down in 1914 because of his eyes, he ran a farm camp in Peabody, Massachusetts. Then he was fortunate enough to fall under the examining hands of a certain army doctor who had sons overseas and knew that Talbert had two overseas brothers, Lewis and Winsor, so he looked the other way when Tal memorized the vision chart, and beamed at him when the examination was finished. "You just passed," he said innocently. So Talbert Josselyn was now an enlisted man, and was sent to Cambridge to join a group coming west to Menlo Park where they would join 20,000 others for officer's training. They arrived in San Francisco the night before the Armistice.

The Josselyn family was united once more right here in Carmel where they had enjoyed possession of considerable acreage since the year 1910. This was by now their home region. And Tal settled down to writing. He wrote of his prospecting experiences in Nevada and on the desert west of the Boulder Dam country, where the color in the landscape "is so metallic, you could ring it with your finger." He drew on his own experiences for his western stories. But he had always been interested in sports; and in the sea. More and more he turned to writing sports fiction: baseball, golf, prize fights, football, polo—stories involving horse racing—any and all sports; for magazines including Collier's, Saturday Evening Post, Red Book. Many of his tales have been taken from this region, which he loves as all New Englanders seem to love it. "Just beyond Cadamatori's rise, one says to oneself: This is mine. The pines put their feet in the water. There is no other place in the world like it."

From the viewpoint of story material, it has been a treasure house to Josselyn. Take the Pebble Beach Golf Course, for instance—the last two holes, the 17th and 18th rated by Lawson Little and Francis Ouimet the two finest finish holes in all the world. "Around these two finish holes I built my golf story The Finisher," says Josselyn; it was published in Collier's in 1931. He used the courses here many times in his stories, and the entire peninsula terrain has been plunder to his hand and mind, grist to the grinding mill of his ingenuity, because it has been a natural playground, because sports have always been his meat, and because so many rich real-life sport stories have unfolded before his eyes. The first Soft Ball League was organized here, where, indeed the game originated. They called the league the Abalone League because sometimes the balls would drive down into a secret shellfish cave close by. Charlie Van Riper was the man who got behind the organization and made all the rules. The game grew out of a more or less spontaneous bat-the-ball game that had been experimented with back in Chicago; perhaps it had been dubbed a name by that time, but at any rate they organized in earnest here on the peninsula.

For authenticity in his baseball stories, Mr. Josselyn went to Connie Mack, an old friend of his father's, for prize fight stories and stories involving the fishing industry, he had an inexhaustible and joyous source of information in the fishing people themselves, particularly in the Solatto family. He would knock on the door and Mama Solatto would call her son "Tiny" that the "romancer" was here. They greeted him all over with smiles and good fellowship and many's the story he got. Tiny was a 126 lb. featherweight champion in charge of a tuna boat called The Liberator, whom Josselyn saw a couple of times in savage fights in Monterey. Out of all this came his story "Navy Bound," another Collier's story. No story of Josselyn's was ever returned for lack of authenticity, for he went straight to his sources and his stories were true technically. "You have to be grounded. Without technical knowledge of your subject, you get nowhere."

The years 1944 and 1945 saw Josselyn in a new setting. World War II. He was living at the Press Club in San Francisco, doing short wave broadcasts for the O.W.I. Evenings he accompanied the Shore Patrol on their beat. Many's the lively spectacle he saw on those night rides, when at one time ninety thousand Navy men were at large in the area and 350 veteran patrolmen were bent on protecting the "sailor ashore" from the ruthless harpies out to "roll" them, or from themselves while they were roaming the waterfront, vulnerable and reckless. Sailors Ashore was born out of this hardy interval, and Collier's got it.

Back in Carmel again, he edited an Army strategic bombing report on the bombing of the oil and chemical fields in Japan and Java and other southern areas. And so it goes with Tal Josselyn, never an idle year, never a bored week or day. He loves life and lives it to the full. He loves the Peninsula, reveres his homeland, has a fine feeling of the interlinking of all men with each other, likes to talk the other fellow's language. Gazing outward on the beautiful vista of Point Lobos from the window of his picturesque home, his keen mind summing up our underlying purpose in words that were spoken convincingly and with a tinge of wistfulness, he concluded an edifying interlude with the observation: "We are the present inheritors of the land. While it is in our keeping we must treasure it, and relinquish it when the time comes, willingly and in good stead."

LAST THREE NIGHTS

The Fatal Wedding, current melodrama delighting entertainment seekers at California's First Theatre, Monterey, is in its last three nights of run. The melodrama of Poison, Kidnapping, Betrayal and Love's Triumph will play on this Friday and Saturday nights, May 14, 15, and give its closing performance on Saturday night, May 21.

The new show in preparation is The Road to Frisco, directed by Freeman Sargent, who also directed The Fatal Wedding. Frisco deals with the days of locating and staking out claims in the mines and is full of pursuit and Wild West complications. The Road to Frisco will open on May 26.

RESURRECTION FOR SURREY

A small surrey with a fringe on top has been saved from a fate worse than death—neglect. Until two months ago the surrey was unwanted, and like all insecure children, felt very, very sad. Now the surrey, whose name is Blue Skies, is in the loving hands of Ruth Samsel and is once again happy in its old trade of giving others a thrill and recalling "the good old days."

Yes, Blue Skies is happy. Happy and grateful for his reception and for all the nice things people in Carmel and Monterey have done to make him feel at home here. Since he's a little fatigued after the first week's activities, The Pine Cone has agreed to voice his thanks.

Teachers Get Pay Raise To Cover Pension Nick

In order to enable teachers of the Carmel Unified School District to meet increased payments on the new state retirement plan, members of the board of trustees voted a $100 per year raise at the regular meeting held Tuesday night.

The new measure, which has already been passed by the lower house of the state legislature, is now before the upper body and apparently will be passed. The measure will call for increased payments by teachers of approximately 80 per cent.

Non-certificated employees of the district also received a $100 increase.

Discussion on possible purchase of a school bus to transport Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach students took place; and the matter was held over for further discussion. Joe's Taxi operates the bus at the present time and a letter was read at the meeting which asks for an increase for $1,125 per year to $2,898.

It was decided to install a wire mesh fence along Pescadero street at the new Dolores school, a grape stake fence around the school and an additional fence to enclose the space between the swimming pool and the gymnasium at the high school.

While the date for the completion of the pool by Stolte, Inc., was supposed to be June 1, the firm stated that the work will not be finished until June 12.

Details of the new budget, except for the salary increases, have not been completely worked out. The budget will probably be presented at the next meeting for discussion and adoption.

The resignation of Miss Viola Knoche was accepted.

SUNSET SCHOOL NOTES

Mrs. Audrey Crawford's 3rd Grade.

The medicine Woman was very kind. She was blind but she could hold up a plant and tell what kind it was because she was born in a place where there were lots of plants and her people taught her the names.

She was very helpful and she cured the sick people of the Winnebago tribe. —Sssan White.

My class is starting to study about Indians. We have made an Indian village. Our teacher is reading the story of Winnebago Boy to us. It is a nice story. We have learned what the Winnebago tribe ate, what kind of houses they had and even how they made candy. —Carolyn Miller.

Indians traveled years ago by travois. A travois is made by putting two poles on either side of the horse and tying them together on his back. At the bottom a mat is woven from reeds. The pack is attached to that. Of course, Indians traveled by foot and in boats too.

Indians ate buffalo stew, roots, Jack-in-the-pulpit and lots of other things.

Now take Jack-in-the-Pulpit for instance. It is the hottest root they ate.

The little Indian boy Long Feather said that it was the hottest thing he had tasted so far. How Indians Travel was written by Pepper Lane. —Linda Huffman.

The Old Medicine Woman cut pieces of bark and shaved it and mixed it with tobacco so the Indians could smoke it.

—Heather Hamilton.

Many years ago there was a tribe that loved to dance. They danced the Sun Dance, the Rain Dance and the Swan Dance. They liked the Rain Dance best and often did the Sun Dance too because they needed rain and sun for their crops. —Lacey Williams.

After an Indian has killed an enemy he must scalp him before he gets an Eagle Feather.

—Charles Lunt.

Once upon a time there was a little Indian boy who liked boats. He wanted to make a birch bark canoe and a dugout.

One day he went down to the river. He made a boat by cutting off the bark of a birchwood tree and forming it into a canoe and sewing it.

One day the little Indian boys' father went with him. The little boy showed him the boat he had made. Then his father showed him how to make a dugout.

—Pierce Phillips.

A long time ago the Indians made a syrup out of maple sap which comes from the maple tree. They cook it 'till it is thick and then shoot ducks and get their bills. They clean the bills and use them to mold the candy.

—Billy Doolittle.

Indians have wickiups, hogans, wigwams, mandans and long houses and other winds too.

When some Indians were at war they slept in some teepees, when they woke up they put away their teepee and started on the war path.

—Parker Pollack.

Many years ago the Indians ate roots and bear meat, deer meat, eagle meat, the meat of many small animals like rabbits, squirrels, chipmunks. They ate fish stew and bear stew made with hominy meal and onions and corn.

—Mike Coleman.

Public Invited To Lecture On Waldorf School Technique

Karl Ege, for 16 years a teacher in the Waldorf School in Stuttgart, will lecture Saturday evening, May 21 in Room 11 at Sunset School at eight o'clock. His subject will be, Education and Teaching During the Age of Puberty. The Waldorf School, founded in 1919, closed by the Nazis in 1938, was one of the first schools to reopen in 1945. Today there are 1300 pupils attending, and as many more waiting for admission.

"It is felt that this school occupies a position of great importance in German education. It is uniquely qualified to educate the present and future generations of German youth in such a manner as to provide them with the knowledge and ideals which will form the foundation of German's material and intellectual reconstruction," says Lt. Col. Richard J. Banks, Deputy Director, Education and Religious Affairs Division American Military Government of Wuertemberg-Baden.

The Waldorf-School Movement is not so well known on this coast as in the east where there are five schools working according to the teaching methods of Rudolf

Steiner. Interest in these schools is spreading and the Rudolf Steiner Study Group of Carmel welcomes this opportunity to present Mr. Ege in this public lecture.

Mrs. E. A. H. Watson and Mrs. Elizabeth Graves of Carmel have adopted pupils in the Waldorf School, and for two years have been in correspondence with the children and their families.

Dean To Speak On State Budget At League Convention

High point of the month for the League of Women Voters is the 28th annual state convention to be held at Asilomar next Monday through Thursday with the Monterey Peninsula L.W.V. sharing the duties of hostess with the Leagues of Salinas and Palo Alto. Mrs. Douglas Carter, newly-elected president of the local organization and general chairman of arrangements, has been occupied for the past month with details for the meeting.

A session that will be of interest to local members and the public is the address by Mr. James Dean, state director of finance, on California's Budget, given on Wednesday evenings at 7:30. With the popular demand for reductions in government spending, the woman's organization believes that citizens should learn just what are the requirements in the state budget. Another interesting program is that of Tuesday afternoon, with the state president, Mrs. Samuel C. May, telling of the recent League National Council meeting, Mrs. George B. Scheer outlining the growth of the League in California, and Mrs. Archer Taylor discussing the campaign to repeal Article XXV. On Wednesday afternoon, the program centers in finances and fund-raising, followed by discussion of the League at the 1949 Legislature, and the League and the United Nations.

Non-delegate members may attend the convention by paying the regular registration fee, or a smaller fee for one day's session. With state officers and delegates from more than thirty Leagues in California and interested members, attendance at the sessions is expected to top 200. Election of officers is scheduled for Thursday morning, with president, executive vice-president, secretary, and treasurer to be chosen from southern California, following the established policy of rotating the chief officers biennially between Leagues of northern and southern California.

the beauty of the Swiss mountains.

Orchestra and chorus members who attended the Northern California State music festival in San Jose last Saturday had an eventful day as they heard musical organizations from all over the northern area perform. Swimming and other entertainment were also provided for the musicians, and in spite of the heat they enjoyed viewing the San Jose State College campus. Seventy Carmel students under Mr. John Farr attended the festival.

A discussion of Smetana's Moldau was presented by Hilary Carson at a recent meeting of the Music Club held at the home of Nancy Dasonville. The group studies great musical works in its bi-monthly meetings which are held each time at a different home. The sponsor is Mr. John Farr.

Thursday, May 26, has been set as the date of the annual CHS spring concert, it was announced this week by Mr. John Farr, music director. The school orchestra, band, chorus, and girls' glee will participate in the evening program, which is to be open to the public.

HI CHATTER

By Nancy Page

Drama class members last week staged Bessie the Bandit's Beautiful Baby, an old fashioned melior-drama with all the frills. Bessie's fatal beauty, alas, was the cause of drastic measures on the part of members of the Romaine household, where she was employed as a lowly servant, but the happy ending came when it was revealed that Bessie was actually the long lost Romaine child. Featured in the cast were Sally Holt, Nancy Bacon, Roland Hathaway, Sybil Kocher, Jim Thompson, Connie Campbell, Janet McFail, Howard Veit, Frank Stewart. The prompter was Erna Barnett.

Several variety acts were included on Friday's program, which was composed of several of the numbers scheduled for our traveling assembly. Dancing, singing, and instrumental numbers made up this part of the show.

Carmel High School acted as host for an all-day meeting on Monday of representatives to the organizing committee for a League Association of Student Councils. Delegates from seven of the CCAL schools drew up a preliminary constitution for the organization. At the session, with Aram Tootelian, our student body president presiding, Douglas Zug, from Pacific Grove, was elected secretary pro tem of the group, and he will call the first meeting after ratification of the new constitution. The League Association of Student Councils will include the ten CCAL schools, with purposes being coordination of League events, responsibility for the League newspaper, action as advisory body to all school councils, and scheduling of student council conventions.

Skiing and other winter's sports were the subjects of three short films shown at a student body assembly early this week. Presenting various Olympic champions in action, the movies also depicted

How Would You Say It?

Curley Lawson's cousin from back East and a few of us got talking when he was here visiting, and I couldn't help noticing how different he said things.

For instance, he said, "Lifting that 200-pound bag of cement almost killed me." "You mean sack of cement?" asks Curley. (That's the way we'd say it.) "No," interrupts young Elliott who'd spent a lot of time down South, "He means a 'poke of see-ment.'"

It was good for a chuckle, anyway. Bag, sack or poke—we knew what he was trying to say. It just depends on where you are in the U. S., which way sounds right.

From where I sit, whenever we criticize someone for sounding funny to us, we ought to think how we sound to them. It's the same as choosing your liquid refreshment. I'm accustomed to a moderate glass of beer—you may like ginger ale—but who's to say the other's wrong? I'd say we're both right!

Dr. Billie's Garden

By L. A. W.

Long ago John Curran gave voice to a sentiment usually quoted as: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." I am learning that this might be parodied to read: eternal vigilance is the price of vegetable gardening.

As I passed by the cabbage plants recently I noticed one where a single low-hanging leaf had been nibbled. Mentally I half-noted that snail bait was indicated. But I went on doing some of the thousand and one chores that April and May bring in abundance to the garden.

A week later my lack of vigilance was rewarded. Here was the cabbage plant with four of its leaves very thoroughly riddled and stripped. More than that, there on the plant were two of the finest specimens of snaildom you ever saw. Their existence was promptly terminated, their progeny offered a tempting repast of poisoned bait, but the poor cabbage plant is still having a struggle for its life.

For weeks now I have watched lush grass and chickweed spread and grow among the raspberry bushes. Today I went down on my knees and cleared out the mess. But—young shoots had begun to grow and in pulling up the tares I destroyed the wheat also. More shoots will come, of course, but my carelessness will net a loss of many good strong shoots. More active vigilance would have saved the life of these sturdy scions.

It seemed to me that my row of parsnips had come up very satisfactorily. So I didn't give it much of any further attention. Suddenly it occurred to me that the seedlings weren't growing very much. Examination showed that the last rain had been followed by bright sun which had baked the soil into a crust. The poor little duffers were being slowly choked to death. All because of my neglect and lack of vigilance.

I am learning that "just a few aphids" means in a couple of days there will be millions of the suckers. So out comes the nicotine spray at the first sight of even a few aphids. Only one or two little green worms on the cauliflower means an immediate dose and several followups of rotenone dusting powder. It does the business but it pays to catch the beggars early.

Perhaps a daily inspection and immediate preventive measures over the whole garden is not out of order. Watchful patting won't do. There'll have to be watchful

Final Symphony Concert Date Set

Final arrangement for the concert to be presented by the Monterey County Symphony Association on May 24 at Sunset auditorium were completed at a recent meeting of the board of directors. This concert, last in the current series, will present music in sympathy with the spring season, and will include an harmonic reminder of the approaching Bach Festival. Lorell McCann and Clifford Anderson will again act as co-conductors.

Mr. McCann will open the program with Estase by Ganne, as transcribed by Tobani, followed by three movements of the Symphony in D Minor by Cesar Franck. After intermission, Mr. Anderson will conduct Wagner's Rienzi Overture, the Fugue in G Minor by Bach, and Kammerlei Ostrow by Anton Rubenstein.

Mrs. Dan Lenoir Hosack, mezzo-soprano, will be heard in two operatic arias, accompanied by the full orchestra.

action. By golly, perhaps that's what John Curran really meant.

Have You Read?

By BETH INGELS

It's a crying shame that so-called literary short stories have such a limited market and/or that people are just simply not interested in that type of fiction. Many are the authors who are writing for the "slicks" because they do pay off, when they could be writing pieces that are really good.

This is all apropos of a volume, published this week by Stanford Press called Stanford Short Stories and edited by Wallace Stegner. The stories are of a superior quality and the editing job is excellent, but by the very nature of them they will be read by only a very limited group of people.

Some of the stories in the book have already been published by small literary magazines which either pay very little or nothing at all. A couple have been used by Atlantic Monthly, but as any writer knows, that magazine is not what could be called a high-paying periodical. The stories, to this reviewer's way of thinking, are equal to or better than anything in the short story form that is being published today.

One story in particular, I'll Take You To Tennessee, by Evan Connell is superb. Other students represented in this volume include: William George, Allan Wendt, Elizabeth Wolfe, Richard K. Arnold, Dean Cadle, John H. Kendrick, David M. Kirk, Oliver Lawrence, Rhoda LeCoq, John Lynch and Clay Putnam.

In a preface, Stegner calls these young writers the "anxious generation" because of their awareness of world tension and insecurity. Only two or three of the stories deal with the war although a maajority of the writers are veterans with battle experience behind them. The volume is well worth reading.

HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW?

One of the fine things about California is that almost everyone has a garden... and those who are not lucky enough to own one enjoy looking at other peoples' flowers... and sometimes smelling them.

To have a good garden one should have good soil, good seed, good water, and a certain amount of know-how. If you are not up on garden lore, consult your nurseryman. He will tell you about soil, seed, sun and shade... and just how to water for best results.

Do You Remember . . . ?

By A. G. WARSHAWSKY

ITALY — 1910

Some part of every day we spent at the Galleries, especially the Uffizi (where we were struck by the number of copyists, among whom there were many very expert workers. They seemed to be devoting their labors particularly to the Primitives . . . These copyists, for the most part Italians, worked in tempera on panels prepared with a gesso ground—the same materials as employed in the originals—and the copies they produced were surprisingly exact. The paintings in tempera, even as far back as the Fourteenth Century, had still preserved their beauty and brilliance of color, appearing for fresher than pictures painted in oils centuries later. I noted how often the Primitive Masters employed a technique of crosshatched colors, very similar to that of the Impressionists of the school of Monet and Pissarro (the "broken color" method), and how far they had extended their science in the matter of warm and cool colors and their opposition. Why these painters should be denoted as Primitives is a mystery to me, for, apart from their not applying our rules of perspective, their works are peerless in craftsmanship and in beauty of color and arrangement.

Of the masters of later date, Botticelli, appealed to me most. He was a first-class decorator, and yet, in many instances, he would depict subjects with amazing realism. At the Palazzo Pitti collection—which, in point of importance, compares with the Uffizi as the Luxembourg Gallery with the Louvre in Paris—I was especially impressed by the important collection of Titians, particularly a superb nude, the last word in sophisticated painting.

In his portraits, nudes and pictures of a pagan type, Titian appears to me incomparable; but his large religious canvases still strike me, as they did then, as sublime chromos. I was beginning to realize the fact that, then as now, there existed a "commercial art" and that "divine subjects" painted to order do not necessarily result in divine art.

As a further proof of this verity there were the famous Raphaels at the Pitti. While his portrait group of cardinals seemed to me great human documents, the famous and often reproduced circular canvas representing the Madonna and Child—the so-called "Madonna dell Sedia"—is another example of the highclass commercial art of his day. His portraits struck me as a far greater achievement in the field of art. But I suppose in spite of the fact that he had a whole troupe of very able assistants, the divine Sanzio must have been hard put to fill all the orders of his noble clients and powerful patrons.

After so many conflicting impressions and mental adjustments, it was a relief to rest in the cool quiet of the lovely Boboli Gardens which surround the Pitti Palace. The strain of so much sightseeing, the constant effort of registering and absorbing the accumulated treasures of art in galleries, churches, and ancient monuments, was often too much. I seemed to have reached the point of saturation, and discouragement would set in. How was it possible to think of competing with the Great Masters who could produce such superb works—works whose authority dominated today as they did in former centuries?

I now realize that this form of depression was not merely due to being overawed by so much beauty. It was my reaction to the atmosphere of Florence itself—an atmosphere of great tradition, but not of creation—a sort of "deadness," like that of most museums, seeming to result from a too great accumulation of a Past and not enough of a living Present to create balance and produce real stimulation. It is a place in which to dream (but not for too long!) of past achievement; but there is danger for the modern artist of being stifled by the power and grandeur of that Past.

While in Florence I made the acquaintance of

DAWN ADVENTURE

*Between the darkness and the day,
Before the brightest stars are gone
Under a sudden flush of gray,
I put my gypsy jacket on:
Let weary folk remain asleep,
Dawn is a rendezvous I keep.*

I find his quiet herd of cows;
Shrill chipmunks chatter in the grass
Of dew-pearled meadows that I pass;
Beyond stark pines that hawks inhabit,
My footfalls rouse a browsing rabbit
And haste him back to solitudes
Of more remote and safer woods.*

*Near oaks where busy squirrels nest,
I halt long moments; while I rest,
I watch fat robins in a hedge
That rides the wind's most meager motion;
I stand intent, as in devotion,
Beside the rippling water's edge.*

*When sunlight floods the forest lawn,
When all the world with color fills,
I cross the threshold of the hills
To chase a lithe elusive fawn
Beyond the pastures of the dawn.*

—CARL JOHN BOSTELMANN.

AMERICAN HERITAGE

*Grandfather Aaron tilled the soil . . .
And the Susquehanna knew his toil.
Grandfather William, seventeen . . .
Panned for gold in the San Joaquin.
Grandfather Aaron wed blue-eyed Bess—
In Quaker bonnet and Quaker dress.
Grandfather William, at sixteen, fell
In love with his black-eyed Isabel.
Grandfather Aaron sat in his pew—
And a mute "amen" was the best he could do.
Grandfather William's roistering song
Was a chantey of hope, when the way was long!
Grandfather Aaron planted and plowed,
Till his back was bent and his head was bowed.
Grandfather William "rounded the Horn"—
There was salt in his veins, from the hour he was born!
Grandfather Aaron grew in girth . . .
Lived and died, at his place of birth.*

*Grandfather William found romance—
For his heart would sing and his feet must dance!
Grandfather Aaron's common-sense
Grandfather William kept his gold—
Much as a cartridge shell would hold . . .
(The rest he lost, on the long trek back,
To a two-gun bandit with mask of black!)
From those few nuggets he made two things:
Yellow betrothal and wedding rings.*

*Yes, Grandfather Aaron left his will—Remembered me in a codocil.
But Grandfather William's "rush for gold,"
His "foolhardy voyage"—each time it's told,
Puts Spring in my heart . . . though my bones grow old!*

*Grandfather Aaron's at rest, on his hill . . .
But, a toast to the ghost of my Grandfather "Bill!"*

—BLANCHE DEGOOD LOFTON.

a local sculptor named Faggeo, who had worked as assistant to George de Forest Brush, during the latter's stay in the city. Although unable to speak each other's language, Faggeo and I became very friendly, roaming about together and exchanging our youthful ideas and enthusiasms. He would speak in short sentences, enunciating slowly and supplementing with signs and gestures, to which I would reply in my smattering of French and pidgin-Italian. We soon understood each other perfectly and I came to understand how the explorer in an African forest establishes verbal contacts with the jungle-men.

Faggeo confided to me his desire to leave his beautiful "Firenze," where there was very little opportunity for him to achieve anything more than the status of assistant to some established sculptor. Like many of his countrymen, he was dreaming of America as a new field. This dream he was able to realize, and eventually he met and married an American girl of a prominent Chicago family. When I met Faggeo some years later in America, he told me had been doing well and was getting many orders.

I found the Florentines a charming and cultivated people—More cultivated, in fact, and less brusque than the Romans, and far more courteous than the Neapolitans and Southern Italians.

As regards to the latter, our Florentine acquaintances were eager to impress upon us that they came of a race different from the southerners, of whose goings-on (especially in connection with Mafia exploits) they, the Florentines, seemed genuinely ashamed.

In Florence, as in Rome, we found very little night life. The few cafes were far from gay. Women unaccompanied in the streets were rare.

We wandered about the hills of Fiesole and Settignano, and revelled in the lovely Tuscan landscape, basking in the sunshine, which never failed us. I particularly remember our delight when rambling along the heights of San Miniato, we came across the radiant David of Michelangelo on the belvedere, which commands one of the loveliest panoramas in the world. Other memories which stand out in connection with our visit to Florence and which left a deep impression, are the sculptures of Donatello and the Fra Angelicos at San Marco.

The paint supply we had brought with us from Paris was running out, for we were painting almost every day. It was only with difficulty that we found color dealers to supply us with what we needed. In spite of the fact that Florence at all times harbors visiting artists, there seemed to be no adequate art store. Supplies were limited and of mediocre quality. Colors were either of German or French origin and consequently much more expensive than in the lands which had produced them. We did, however, discover cardboard panels for painting in oils, much lighter and cheaper than the wooden ones we had been employing so far.

After a month, which had passed all too quickly, we regretfully tore ourselves away from these enchanting sites, and, with a considerably increased stock of paintings, entrained for Venice.

VENICE

Olinsky had written us that he had secured a dwelling place for us overlooking a small canal, near the Maria della Salute. This turned out to be the very spacious spare room of a flat belonging to a cobbler and his wife. As if to confirm the exception to the rule, the couple were childless. Only breakfast being included in the arrangement, we had to go out for our meals.

The railroad trip to Venice proved a disappointment. Instead of being able to enjoy a succession of lovely panoramas, we were only afforded tantalizing glimpses, owing to the seemingly endless series of tunnels through which we passed and which only diminished when we reached the somewhat monotonous northern plains. We finally arrived in Venice grimy with soot and cinders, and parched with thirst.

Catlin Returns

John Catlin, Carmel's own Van Dyke bearded former Mayor, and stone carver, has returned from a two week visit to some old friends, the Bullock's also former Carmelites.

The Bullocks, Charles and Alvine, own a Tearoom Gift Shop, Trailer Village and Motel in the heart of the giant Redwoods of Humboldt County, in Redcrest, just 4 miles north of the World's tallest tree, and 40 miles south of Eureka on the 101 Highway.

No place is so glorious as the Redwoods, and the perfect weather makes them a place of unforgettable beauty.

Canoles Attend Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Canoles returned from Sun Valley Sunday after attending the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. convention at the resort, where Mr. Canoles was a guest of the President's Club. They report that they not only enjoyed the convention but found Sun Valley most exciting.

Both driving up and returning they had an opportunity for visits with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Magaldi (Carol Canoles), in Reno.

While they were away, Mrs. Canoles' brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Edwards, were here to stay with their mother, Mrs. Carol Edwards, who has recently been ill. The whole family was together here for Mother's Day.

Attend Convention

Among the Carmel residents who joined Reverend A. B. Secombe in attendance at the Episcopal Diocesan Convocation at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Salinas on Wednesday were Mrs. Bruce Bacon, who took part in the program, Mrs. Elizabeth Madison, Mrs. M. L. H. Reynolds, Mrs. I. M. Terhune, Miss Alice McClure, Mrs. F. Garner Boice, Mrs. Harold Brewster and Mr. Ronald Ogilvie. The Right Reverend Karl Block, Bishop of California, was present to preside at the Convocation.

Rene McDonald Leaves

Mrs. Rene McDonald boards a plane tomorrow night headed for Des Moines, Iowa, where she will visit her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Allen, and her two grandchildren. Mrs. McDonald is planning an indefinite stay, in spite of the fact that she's dreading the midwestern summer. Before returning to Carmel, she hopes to tour the east and look up friends there.

Mrs. McDonald's sister, Mrs. Herman Crossman, is returning to her home in Connecticut this week after a visit here with her sister and mother.

Prossers Welcome Friend

A pleasant surprise for Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Prosser this week was the visit of an old friend, Mrs. W. G. Walker, from Spokane, where the Prossers formerly lived. Mrs. Walker is on her way to Las Vegas and a tour of the Grand Canyon and is accompanied by Mrs. L. DeCota of San Francisco, who has just returned from a trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

Mrs. Grant Wallace Here

Mrs. Grant Wallace arrived from Berkeley on Wednesday to spend a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Guthrie Courvoisier, in Carmel Highlands. Mr. Courvoisier is at present in Los Angeles on business.

New Face and Faces

The antique shop formerly owned by Helen Brazil not only has new owners but a completely new decor, inside and out. David Eldridge, an enthusiastic participant in local theater, and his partner, Arthur Pitcaithly, have been busy revamping the shop and making plans to increase their stock of antiques and decrease the cost usually associated with these treasures.

Mr. Eldridge lived in Carmel some 12 years ago, and when he returned to Carmel just before Christmas, he brought with him his aunt, Miss Helen Iott of Hollywood, who will help oversee the house they have purchased on Casanova street.

Dr. Minear College Prexy

Dr. Leon P. Minear has been appointed president of Stockton College, and will assume that post in the fall. The Minears left Carmel about two years ago, when Dr. Minear became vice-principal of the junior college of Denver University, and president of the Denver Businessmen's Symphony. While in Carmel, Dr. Minear was vice-principal and dean of boys at Carmel High School, and was the first conductor of the Monterey County Symphony, as well as highly instrumental in its organization.

Back From New York

Mayor Fred Godwin was back in town Wednesday after several weeks in the east. He was a delegate to the American Resort Hotelmen's meeting, representing California. He reports that the east seems to be feeling the slow-up in business more than the west, "possibly because there are more industrial workers being laid off." Luxury hotels are suffering a 15 per cent fall off in business. "Room business stays up but people are ordering pot roast instead of steak in the dining rooms. They aren't buying fancy wines so freely. Night club business is off."

Scout Leaders Meet

The Brownies and Girl Scouts brought happiness to many a shut-in with their May Day baskets, it was revealed at the meeting of the Girl Scout Leaders on May 4 at the Monterey Girl Scout House.

On the agenda was an evaluation of the Juliette Low International Picnic and recommendation for the event next year. Leaders were asked to notify the Girl Scout office of completed badge work, and any new leader who has not been in for "briefing" should get in touch with Mrs. Victor Drilea or Mrs. Carl Berger at the office. Plans were also discussed concerning the Big Sur established camp and the Whispering Pines day camp. Called to the members' attention was the importance of attending the Association Council meeting at the Casa Munras on June 1 at 2:30 p. m.

The meeting concluded with talks on first aid by Mrs. Drilea and Mrs. Berger.

Rummage Sale Success

The rummage sale held by All Saints' Church in the Parish House on May 5 was an overwhelming success. According to Mrs. F. Garner Boice, the Church organization cleared about $1,100.

Gilmore Sisters Here

Madelyn and Grace Gilmore, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Gilmore of San Francisco, were recent guests at Del Monte Lodge. They were on the Peninsula to attend the wedding of Nancy Terese Hogan and Horton P. Westoler, Jr., which took place at the Carmel Mission on April 30.

It's fun to pick out wall paper at the CARMEL PAINT AND WALLPAPER CO! As you leaf through the large selection of designs, there are both miniatures and full size samples so you'll know exactly what each print looks like. Beautiful hand prints come in a wide price range, with many exclusive patterns. Perfect for a powder room would be Carnival, while another design called Shadow Box Floral presents a striking treatment of color and depth. You'll love such prints as Hooked Rug, Cafe Dome, and Jasmin. There are Chinese prints, too, also lots of wonderful flower designs. And, beside all this, the Walkers tell us that you can even have paper made up in the colors of your choice! Drop in right away for a look-see and enjoy a friendly cup of coffee with Mr. and Mrs. Walker. Junipero and Fourth is the location of the CARMEL PAINT AND WALLPAPER CO.

You'll want to sit in the sun all summer long with the cute new terrycloth beach outfits we found for you at HARRIET DUNCAN'S. Well-fitting little shorts have an elasticized zip back with a hip pocket for your Canastra pack. Shorts and matching halter are both lined for swimming. To go with the set there's a terry coat that's just plain adorable! Darling collar and two huge pockets furnish detail to this all-purpose beach coat. Terry cloth trio comes in maize and white at a typical HARRIET DUNCAN price you can't afford to pass by. Gold pique makes another striking outfit, this one strictly for sunning. Two pockets on the shorts set off the pattern of the material, while the halter sports a gold buckle and elasticized back. Matching full skirt and plunge-neck blouse complete the outfit when company comes. This versatile set is a real buy at HARRIET DUNCAN'S, Lincoln and Sixth, you know.

New twists to your old favorites in the gay array of T shirts at PUTNAM AND RAGGETT'S. All sorts of styles from the regular plain and tailored to those with demure little collars or cap-sleeves. And the colors! Ah! Bold stripes come in every imaginable combination, while there are narrow stripes and plain colors to go with any outfit. One very sporty number we saw was done in a gray and yellow stripe, with a little collar and wide ribbing at the bottom. A wide stripe in aqua, white, and brown was another pleasing combination. Among the newer styles at PUTNAM AND RAGGETT'S was a square neck design with contrasting yoke in a white with yellow or blue. They have everything! So for T shirts to suit any occasion, and to suit you to a "T," it's PUTNAM AND RAGGETT'S, Ocean and San Carlos.

Your best bib 'n' tucker need have nary a speck of dirt on it with the VILLAGE CLEANER on hand to serve us. And if you're in a really big rush for a last minute date, there's the special twenty-four hour service. Nothing is spared by the VILLAGE CLEANER to give you "spotless" work, for careful attention to small details and all over quality work have built up a name for their superior dry-cleaning service. Special feature is a cash and carry plan, so for the best kind of job, you'll want to take your next batch of cleaning to the VILLAGE CLEANER, Ocean and Mission.

Carmel's Bohemian atmosphere is further heightened by the French cuisine of Fernand, new manager and chef at LA MAISONNETTE (formerly the Chop House.) Tantalizing flavors in rich sauces and delicious soups will leave you guessing "how they do it," and skillful combining of herbs and seasonings will make your mouth water for more. Fernand comes to us from Burgundy, world center for culinary feats, and with him he brings such out-of-this-world items as Chichen Saute Sec, with its subtle flavoring, and Finnciere, calves' sweetbreads expertly prepared with a tempting mushroom garnish. Another specialty is Baked Ham with champagne sauce—a heavenly dish that only the experienced touch of Fernand could make so pleasing to your palate. LA MAISONNETTE, Lincoln and Sixth, is open from 6:00 a. m. to 11:00 p. m., with French style serving beginning today. You'll want to make this a must on your list of regular "dine out" spots.

When he was boss of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, Dick Phinney worked like mad to get people to come to Monterey; now, as partner in the PHINNEY-McGINNIS TRAVEL AGENCY, 408 Alvarado street, he's working just-as mad to get 'em to leave!

The other half of the combination, Bob McGinnis, was on the late General Stilwell's Public Relations staff in the China-Burma-India theater. In all respects they are both well qualified to aid you with your travel problems. The PHINNEY-McGINNIS TRAVEL AGENCY specializes in personal service, right to your door! Do call 2-0313, Monterey, and let either Dick or Bob help you plan that next trip.

Somebody you know has a birthday or anniversary in the near future. Or what could be nicer than to just remember the favorite lady because you love her! Flowers are always the sweetest token of love and friendship one can offer. The FLOR DE MONTEREY, 217 Franklin street in Monterey, can help you select the most appropriate bouquet for any occasion. Don't forget, too, that they belong to the Telegraph Delivery Service and can send the flowers of your choice to any place in the country.

"Sweet and Lovely" is the vogue this spring. We were enchanted with the wonderful selections in brand new cottons at the COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP, 489 Alvarado street. They all range in price from $8.95 to $24.95. There is an oh-so-cool seersucker sun dress in delightful shades of gray, pink or aqua. It can be laundered in a jiffy and needs little pressing. You have a marvelous choice of crisp chambrays with petite waffle pique collars and pockets . . . two piece pastels with flattering peplums and a double row of buttons marching down to neat little belts! Whirl to your heart's content in a gay merry-go-round shirt in dashing shades of pink, blue, green, or cinnamon. Pure femininity is the word for the blouses to be had for a song. Cotton islet blouses are from $2.95 to $5.50 . . . or how about a darling batiste embroidery charmer in many becoming styles?

Be sweet and lovely, girls, in something very special from the COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP.

WHILE THE COAST SLEEPS

Hundreds of telephone people in the West keep night patrol to help meet emergencies and keep service reliable

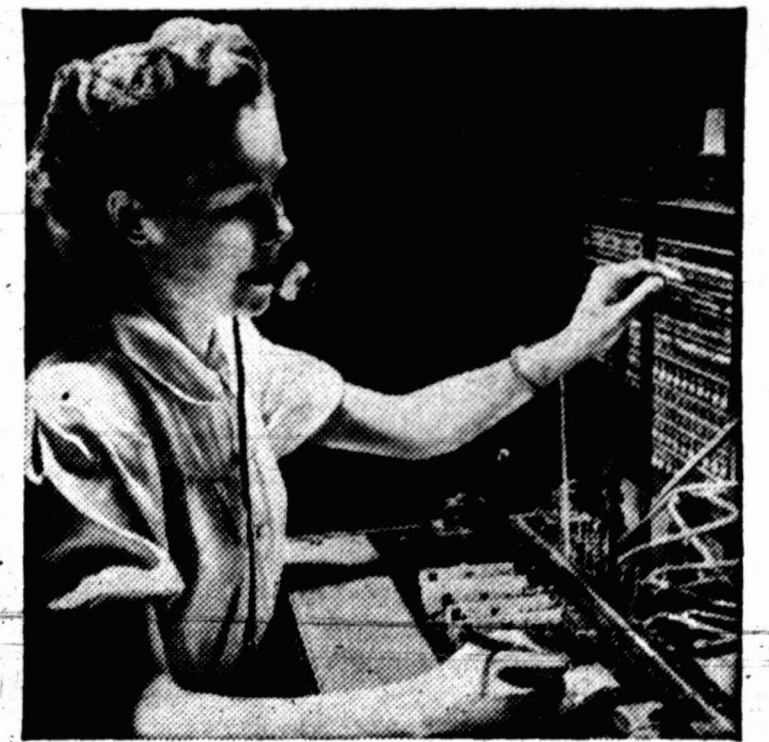

1. Darkness can't stop these telephone men as they begin an important emergency cable repair at night. Fortunately, these emergencies are not common . . . usually can be repaired in daylight. But, up and down the Coast, other telephone people burn midnight oil regularly . . . so your telephone will work for you when you want it.

2. One important night-time job is done by this electronic tester. It checks lines to make sure they're in good shape. At the same time, other telephone men are vacuum cleaning and inspecting sensitive switching equipment . . . you might say it's stopping trouble before it starts. And night is the best time to do it, while most telephone users are sleeping.

4. You can help yourself get the most from your telephone . . . a servant that is constantly growing in value. You can do it by using the telephone in the most efficient way: being sure of the right number before you call . . . giving the called person plenty of time to get to the telephone . . . spacing your calls so others may get a call through to you.

3. In the quiet hours of the night operators handle relatively few calls . . . but many of them are vitally important. Repairmen are on call for service on important lines . . . doctors, hospitals and the like. Garagemen check and equip trucks for the next day's installation rounds. Building service workers make offices spic and span . . . all a part of providing reliable service to you.

The Time Has Come . .

By Kippy Stuart

"How Does Your Garden Grow" has become a shibboleth to all California gardeners. Come Sunday morning we find ourselves glued to the radio listening to the famous Albert Wilson voice. For some years now, Mr. Wilson has taken our garden defeats and turned them into triumphs. He has led us down our garden paths, teaching, explaining and renewing our enthusiasm with his kindly camaraderie. Under his guidance gardens have flourished, and the trick that has brought his broadcast hour into thousands of homes, is Mr. Wilson's simplicity. He knows all the big words; he could mystify his listeners into unconsciousness, but rather he steps down from his high seat and talks the language of us, the laymen.

The radio station from which Mr. Wilson broadcasts has been badgered to these many years, by earnest gardeners asking for copies of this and that talk. At first, Mr. Wilson took it upon himself to type out copies of these coveted lectures and send them on their way to radio friends. Soon, this grew into a major industry of proportions beyond concept and there was nothing for Mr. Wilson to do . . . but do something about it.

The feat has been accomplished. Mr. Wilson has done something about it and now we can all benefit, not only from the Sunday morning broadcasts, but from the book itself; "How Does Your Garden Grow", by Albert Wilson.

This is not just another horticultural tome; this is not a repeat of hundreds of good garden manuals. "How Does Your Garden Grow" is what California gardeners need; an intimate, personalized story of our own gardens. There is a fillip to the book of unexpected humor. Chuckles are tucked in between erudite paragraphs that relieve the strain of concentration and study. The Wilson "Opportune Task" has become a famous line, but who would expect nonsense to precede profound advice? "Today", says Mr. Wilson, "Eat hot cakes for breakfast and a rasher of bacon. Then spring into the garden for the Opportune Task."

Another celebrated Wilson saying is, "The Plan's the Thing." Before a single blade of grass is planted, before the first shrub is planted. "For goodness sake," says Mr. Wilson, "Have your plan. Don't indulge in scatter gardening." We have all been self-victims of unplanned gardens and the book, How Does Your Garden Grow will help us to eliminate the garden that resembles, of all things, a Polish Picnic.

The book is fun and is designed on a chronological pattern of the Opportune Task at the opportune season. If you want to know what to do about things the second week in May, turn to Chapter 20, and there you are, right on the beam. And what's more, you can stay on the beam, and ride the beam to success with the help of How Does Your Garden Grow.

Fashion Show

Fashions from which to assemble a complete summer wardrobe, and a few neat tricks to carry you right through the year, were shown by The Country Shop at the weekly fashion luncheon at the Pine Inn on Wednesday.

Miss Ellen Leeds, commentator, wore, the ideal, year-round choice for our climate, a tailored gray flannel suit of distinguished lines. At the opposite pole, Miss Kathleen Neel appeared ready to swirl around the dance floor in a bright red taffeta gown cut princess style, truly a "special occasion" number.

Of the in-between dresses, Mrs. Jay Clancy wore a particularly lovely silk print in royal blue and black, an afternoon dress with dolman sleeves and bias gathered folds at the low-cut neckline. Mrs. Clancy also showed a sun dress of butcher linen with matching bolero of powder blue and a colorful sash. A graceful spectator sports dress worn by Miss Neal has a clever arrangement of color, the white skirt continuing in a panel up the center front of the brown top. An extremely graceful look was given to the dress by the material, Oxford crepe. On the casual side, Mrs. Joanne Nix modeled a four-piece play suit of old fashioned calico print, its wrap skirt ruffled in a becoming manner and the bolero providing cover-up for town purposes.

Mrs. Aline Walker wore the always-good two-piece knit dress, this one in a neutral shade with nice detail in the knit pattern. Over it she wore a stunning suede cardigan from Kramer's Shop for Women. The cardigan coat, this in shocking pink, had a matching beret (you can also have a beanie), and is an article that could easily double for mixing with suits or tossing over tailored dresses.

A really beautiful suit in classic lines was the fawn Milatene double breasted one worn by Mrs. Nix. The pocket treatment gave interest to the severely simple long jacket which was trimmed with gold buttons.

Another versatile suit, with tweed jacket and flannel skirt was shown, and there was an excellent choice of summer washables in crisp materials, pure silk prints and traveling ensembles.

Flowers for the occasion were provided by N. B. Florists. The models' hair was dressed by the El Paseo Beauty Salon and by Kramer's Beauty Salon.

Council Of Church Women

Mrs. E. G. Strickland of Carmel was elected vice president and Mrs. D. E. Ellis was chosen recording secretary for a two-year term at the meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Council of Church Women at the Mayflower Church in Pacific Grove last Friday. Other officers will be elected next year for a two-year term.

Mrs. M. O. Lawrence, president, was in charge of the meeting, which began with breakfast, followed by a business meeting and concluded with an address by Colonel Roy N. Hillyer.

Miss Mabel Hoffman, treasurer, reported handling $405.75 for the year, with a small balance on hand. Mrs. Lena Landis told of the bill for improving conditions for migrant worker which California's Representative, Helen Gahagan Douglas, has introduced into Congress and for which support is requested on its emergency from committee.

Mrs. Lawrence spoke of the State meeting held in Fresno in April. On the question of merger of the national United Council of Church Women with seven other organizations, 29 voted in favor and one against, with the majority not voting because of uncertainty as to the final effect if it goes through. The next meeting of the C.C.W. was announced for the Church of the Wayfarer on September 2.

Random Shots

Ted Jerstadt and his pretty wife were in town last weekend to call on old friends.

Betty Horst wasn't in the hospital this week long enough to receive all the orchids friends were planning to send her.

Did Rancho Peso, the home of the George Dollars in Carmel Valley, take its name from his horse Peso, or vice versa?

The Harry Leonards and small fry are established at the old Fertig place in Pebble Beach after selling their house on Scenic.

The Ward Laws and the Hart Laws all down at Nepenthe last weekend for a look-see and dinner.

We think the golden pheasant that Irene Alexander saw belongs to Mrs. Stilwell; we do know that it is someone's pet.

Mrs. Henry Henderson, frequent visitor from Oakland, would like to know who owns the white boxer in town. Anyone know?

How about that blackbird that attacks chosen citizens on Ocean Avenue near the library. What's his, or her, line of discrimination?

The Frank Works planning a trip to Europe this summer.

George and Loli Willox rushing to San Francisco, schedules crossed, meeting and missing friends, and finally returning home for a rest.

Carol Howard maintains that gimlets are less deadly than martinis; her guests don't agree.

Who got the turtle soup? Yes, I did—15 minutes after the paper came out last Friday, in spite of the fact that Frank and Marjorie Lloyd had been planning it as a gift to Dr. Eric Berne on his birthday.

LWV Holds Election

Election of officers in the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula last week made Mrs. Douglas Carter president, with election of all candidates offered by the nominating committee (as listed in The Pine Cone last week.) The new nominating committee for 1949-50 consists of Mrs. Edmond Sullivan, Miss Orre Haseltine, Mrs. Nelson Miles Leoni, Mrs. Fenton Grigsby and Mrs. Lee O. Kellogg. Reports on the year's activities followed a picnic lunch at Los Laureles ranch in Carmel Valley, with Mrs. Frances A. Ballard, retiring president, in charge.

Miss Orre Haseltine, finance chairman, offered a budget of $1,260 to support the League's share in state and national activities and to permit distribution of pamphlets on current national and international problems; the budget was approved. Miss Haseltine and Miss Turner withdrew as delegates to the state convention next week at Asilomar in favor of two newer members. Elected for this service were Mrs. John B. Geisen, Mrs. Richard Lofton, and one of the early members, Miss Lydia Weld. As alternates, Miss Turner, Mrs. Fred S. Farr and Mrs. John Shephard were chosen.

Mrs. Carter, as general chairman of arrangements for the convention next week, urged members who can do so to attend some sessions of the meeting and see how the organization decides its policies and program. As there will be a number of matters to be voted by the official delegates, a discussion meeting of interested members and local delegates was held yesterday at the home of Miss Haseltine.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

Plans for the observance of Memorial Day on May 30 got well under way at the regular weekly meeting of the Carmel American Legion Monday evening. Services will be held at Devendorff Plaza at 11 a.m. to honor Carmel's war dead, and in the memory of former Legion members wreathes will also be placed on graves in the Monterey cemetery. A chaplain, not yet selected, will preside at the ceremonies for which an honor guard will be present.

Patnude Elected New President Of Wayfarer League

The annual meeting last Monday evening of the Church League, governing body of the Church of the Wayfarer, brought out the need for more room, both for regular Sunday services as well as for the Church school and youth activities. Sunday teachers are needed for the junior and primary departments, it was reported by Howard Timbers, retiring head of the religious education committee.

Edward K. Neroda, retiring treasurer, reported on Church finances. The Easter offering of $1,100 went to the American Friends Service Committee for relief work around the world, and $570 at Christmas to Church World Service for similar relief. Reports were given by Harlan Reyburn on intermediate and junior work; by Mrs. Walter Kreisler for the Women's Auxiliary; by Ted Fehring for Men of the Wayfarer; and Dr. K. ### BOOK FOR THE AMATEUR GARDENER

By Lester Rountree

In California's rapidly increasing population is contained a large number of newly-come gardeners unused to the climates of our state and unfamiliar with our peculiar methods of gardening. This spring has given them, and us, a book packed with information on how to go about gardening in California. Norvell Gillespie's Pacific Coast Gardening Guide published by Doubleday and Company, and costing three dollars. The book opens with sound advice under the title of Ten Commandments of Good Gardening and follows it with an excellent chapter on soil management which ends with valuable fertilizer charts simplifying a subject in which the amateur may easily get bogged down. "Gardening Operations" deals with pests, pruning, staking and a much-needed section on how to water. Then follow chapters on the standbys of most central Californian gardens—roses, tuberous begonias, rhododendrons, fuchsias, camellias, azaleas and lilies, with information which is always acceptable even though it is repeated over and over in books on Californian gardening and in western gardening magazines.

Last winter's frost gives pertinence to the chapter on Successful Subtropicals in the North, written chiefly for central California, and may lead to a revision of the valuable Subtropical Growing Report, at the end of the chapter, which gives limits on protection. The next three chapters touch on the greenhouse, the lathe house, the rock and the water gardens, and potted plants; and the twenty-fifth and last chapter gathers stray leftovers into a "Potpourri" in which lilacs (not ceanothus) and carnations are given paragraphs. Would that carnations had been treated more fully for here is a plant which can be grown to perfection in our state and with which comparatively little has dening Operations" deals with pests, pruning, staking and a much-needed section on how to water. Then follow chapters on the standbys of most central Californian gardens—roses, tuberous begonias, rhododendrons, fuchsias, camellias, azaleas and lilies, with information which is always acceptable even though it is repeated over and over in books on Californian gardening and in western gardening magazines.

Last winter's frost gives pertinence to the chapter on Successful Subtropicals in the North, written chiefly for central California, and may lead to a revision of the valuable Subtropical Growing Report, at the end of the chapter, which gives limits on protection. The next three chapters touch on the greenhouse, the lathe house, the rock and the water gardens, and potted plants; and the twenty-fifth and last chapter gathers stray leftovers into a "Potpourri" in which lilacs (not ceanothus) and carnations are given paragraphs. Would that carnations had been treated more fully for here is a plant which can be grown to perfection in our state and with which comparatively little has been done by either western gardeners or nurserymen.

Lists are the pride of publishers of horticultural books and the joy and solace of readers—this book bristles with lists. Most chapters are rounded off with a list of books for recommended reading and a list of catalogues. There is a list of plant societies and a list of temperature data of twenty-two cities south and east of San Francisco as well as of some cities in other western states. The book is excellently indexed—something for which we will all be grateful. Norvell Gillespie has a syndicated newspaper column and makes weekly broadcasts on gardening.

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, May 15. The Golden Text is taken from I Corinthians: "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (15:53).

The following citations are included in the sermon:

The Bible: "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently: Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever" (I Peter 1:22, 23).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Human birth, growth, maturity, and decay are as the grass springing from the soil with beautiful green blades, afterwards to wither and return to its native nothingness. This mortal seeming is temporal; it never merges into immortality, but finally disappears, and immortal man, spiritual and eternal, is found to be the real man" (p. 190).

All Are Invited To Join Forest Theater Guild

"What has happened to those good old days with Carmel's finest local plays performed in the charming setting beneath the lofty pines in the Forest Theater—in spite of fog, too? Perhaps we weren't so delicate in those days before steam heat and thermostates, and we didn't mind if there were only blankets and bonfires to keep us warm. Yes, we didn't mind then if an open air theater was in the open air."

These were among the remarks last Friday when a group of 21 local residents gathered in Bert Heron's office in the Seven Arts Court to discuss means and ways of financing plays with local talent casts in Forest Theater.

This enthusiastic assembly agreed upon the establishment of a Forest Theater Guild, a non-profit organization, where all dues received will be used to defray expenses incurred in the production of plays. Officers elected by the group include David T. Prince, president, Mrs. John Walsh, secretary, and Mrs. Joseph F. Frame, treasurer.

The purpose of the Guild is to have a group of members who will participate in the production end as well as act.

If you wish to become a member, charter membership may be obtained by mailing a check for $5 payable to the Forest Theater Guild, care of the treasurer, Mrs. J. F. Frame, P. O. Box 2846, Carmel.

A brief resume was given by Bert Heron of the founding, building and establishment of the Forest Theater up to this year, in which he will celebrate his fortieth year of work and sponsoring the maintenance of the yearly Shakespeare Festival.

The first step of the newly organized Guild was to decide upon the production of Herbert Heron's Montezuma, to be given July 29, 30 and 31, in the Forest Theater. Plans for casting, costuming and making of sets will be discussed Sunday, May 22, at 2 p. m. All interested are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

League Urges Special Election On Article 25

Cooperating with the California Council for the Blind who prepared the initiative petition calling for repeal of Article XXV in the State Constitution (Proposition 4), the League of Women Voters of California is urging citizens to request Governor Warren to call a special election on the petition. The action would retain the higher amounts adopted in November for assistance to the aged and the blind, but would change the provisions from the Constitution to the code and make the office of director appointive instead of elective. The petition qualified for the ballot and its promoters believe the matter should be decided this year.

Eleanor Atkin

Services were held Wednesday at Dorney's Chapel for Eleanor D. Atkin, 78, who passed away Monday at a local hospital. She was a native of South Shield, England, and had resided in the community for 10 years.

She is survived by two sons, Charles Atkin and John Atkin, both of New York; three daughters, Mrs. Elaine Watkins of Culver City, Mrs. G. D. Fleig of Carmel, and Mrs. B. Taylor of Topeka, Kansas, and one sister, Mrs. T. J. Allen of San Francisco.

Gallery Announces One-Man Shows

The Beardsley Memorial Gallery will be devoted to wood sculpture by Fred Bacon. This young sculptor collects his wood from all parts of the west coast and achieves most interesting effects in his work.

Enamels will be shown by Tom Valliant, while in the entrance hall there will be an exhibition of lithographs by Reinhold Weidenaar.

Carmel Favorites In Play Opening

(Continued from Page One) ious comedy of errors, an enchanting masquerade in which baron and valet, countess and maid, change places for an evening's confused amusement. Rich settings, charming costumes and lovely Viennese music contribute materially to the production. Like last year's Voice of the Turtle, this refreshing and delightful play is attuned to the mood of springtime.
